

Dear whoever finds themselves reading this during these difficult and confusing times,

It is okay to feel vulnerable, confused, or unsafe in this time. And in this feeling, you are not alone. It is clear that the current world events of a pandemic have caused a lot of fear amongst us all. There's uncertainty and no one truly knows when or even how the world will ever recover.

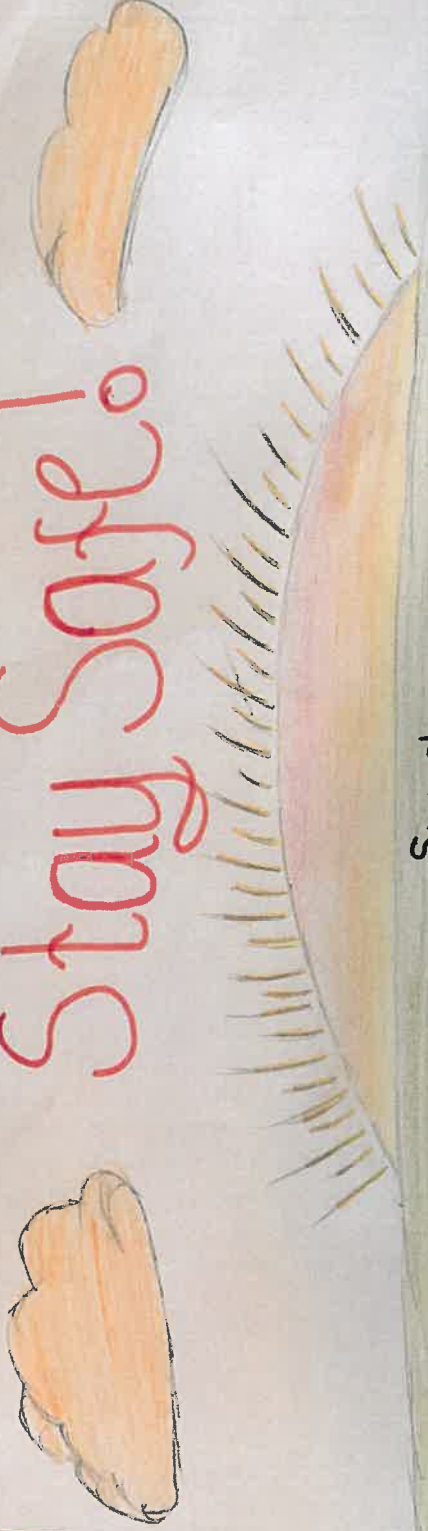

However, in this moment, with just us here. None of that matters. There is hope for the future and really, that's all we need. I offer you all the support you may ever need. As well as the reassurance that there is a brighter side!

We are all members of this fantastic community and are all able to band together to fight this. You are strong, we are strong. And together with the hope and hard work through the actions people are taking across the area, we will get through this. As a member of today's youth and willing member of this beautiful community, I am determined to reassure you and offer my support. We will get come out of this better than ever. We will find a time where we can go outside and wave and exclaim "I love you" without even knowing one another's name! I can see a time where we appreciate the world around us just that little bit more. That basic essentials such as toilet paper are valued. Nothing will be taken for granted and be appreciated. Overall, treating one another with full and happy hearts. We are stronger together. Little by little, piece by piece, we can aid the world in its recovery.

I hope you stay safe and live well,

Stay Safe!

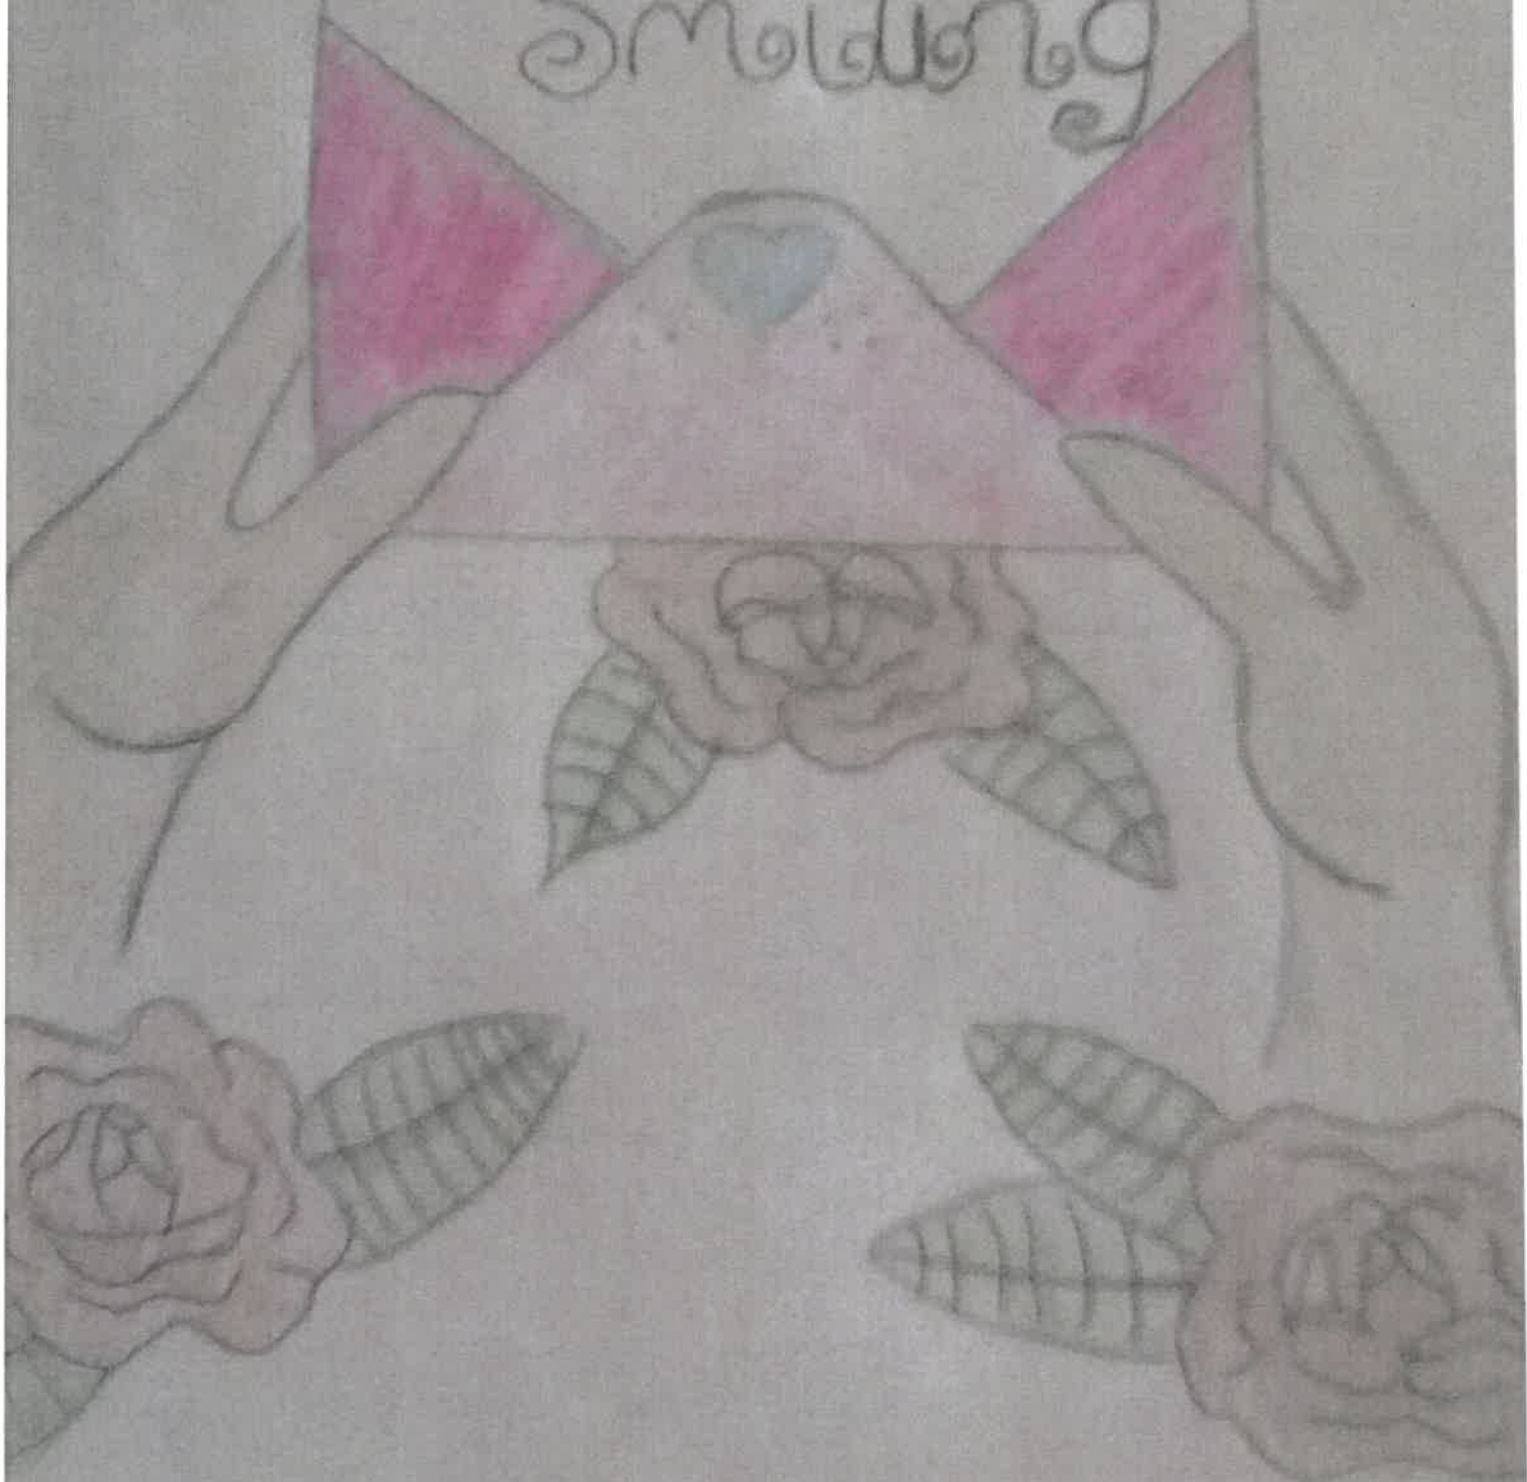

Sunset

Now the sun is sinking in the golden west,
Birds and bees and children, all have gone to rest;
And the merry streamlet, As it runs along,
With a voice of sweetness, Sings its evening song.

Cawslip, daisy, violet, In their little beds,
All among the grasses, Hide their heavy heads,
There they'll all, sweet darlings, Lie in the happy dreams,
Till the rosey morning, Wakes them with its beams.

କେ ତୋତେ

ସମାପ୍ତି

STAY
SAFE ♡

Discipline
&
Love

11/11